

Jigsaw Training Dig, held in Manor Field, Covington

Jigsaw members and others came from all over Cambridgeshire (and elsewhere) to take part in Jigsaw's 2015 training dig, held in Covington. During the fortnight, there was also a Medieval pottery making course and a replica Roman kiln was built and fired. Enjoy the selection of photos below (kindly taken by John Turrell) and look out for a report on the dig to be published by Jigsaw.

An open field gate in the centre of the village awaited the Jigsaw Training Dig archaeologists.

Covington History Group members always travel light....

The field was a hive of activity

But sometimes two's company...

Metal detecting and surveying lessons

There were finds which had to be processed

... and recording to be done

Meanwhile, James and Simon went off into the woods - together with an auger

The trenches

Village site tour and the Open Day

That's all folks!

The photographs on this site are © John Turrell, Marilyn Turrell, Simon Luscombe, Lynne Koch, Simon and Mary-Ann Parsons.

All other content of this web site that has no specific attribution is © 1994-2024 Covington Parish Meeting.
Reproduction of any part of this web site in any form without written consent is forbidden.

Webmaster Contact